EXTRACTS OF REVIEWS AND NOTICES BY THE PRESS.

"There is a freshness and glow in the style, and a home interest that will secure the sympathy of every reader. 'Kate Kearney,' the longest tale, is a charming novelette, with many delightful pictures of character.'

"This is the work of a close and sagacious observer. It consists of a series of pictures of communial life. They are drawn with very considerable dramatic power; the style is unpretending and unaffected—a very rare merit in these days—and the narrative is not strained to suit the noral, but in every instance so natural as to justify the impression that the selections are made from life."

"A series of sketches of domestic life, apparently drawn from actual observation. They are all marked by not a little accuraces of perception, and portray several interesting varieties of character with fidelity to nature and beauty of expression."

[N. Y. Tvipune.

ter with fidelity to nature and beauty of expression."

"The 'Portraits' are well drawn, and will doubtless be soughtor by many."

"Uncle Bent' has acquitted himself of the task with a goodeal of cleverness. The style is genial and pleasant."

deal of cleverness. The style is genial and pleasant."

"One or two of the stories are very pathetic, and all are well written."

"An old batchelor has certainly made a very entertaining book."

"A very pleasant and readable volume, and one which will undoubtedly enjoy considerable popularity."

"A very pleasant and readable volume, and one which will undoubtedly enjoy considerable popularity.

"The book is a charming one."

"A very pleasant and readable volume, and one which will undoubtedly enjoy considerable popularity.

"A very pleasant and readable volume, and one which will attract attention, admirably illustrated." Peterson's National Magazine.

"The portraits are all life-like and real, while the stories have a most captivating freshness and novelty."

[Pennsylvanian, Philadelphia.

"The volume consists of a series of tales written with originality, v gor and grace."

[Philadelphia National Argus.

"The sketches in the volume are very well written, and will furnish amosement for a Winter's evening."

[The National Ers, Washington, D. C.

"The success of this delightful volume as the property of the property o furnish amusement for a Winter's evening."

"The success of this delightful volume has been unprecedented in these times. We do not wonder, for the book is really a most charming one. 'Kate Kearney' evinces shifty equal to the production of a first-class novel."

"They are spirited aketches of six family groups, naturally drawn."

As a literary effort, and the first, we believe, submitted to the public by the authors it is a decided success."

BURTON'S NEW THEATER. -SATURDAY MONTI'S TRANSLATION.

THE GREAT ITALIAN NOVEL

Guerant in a state of Beatrice:

"Inasmuch as I have been able to comprehend thee, implore for me sufficient power to narrate worthily thy history to these dear Itaijan maidens, who love thee as a sister just departed, though the shadow of two centuries and a half is spread over thy sepuiche. Verily thine is a history of sad crimes; but the maidens of my country will read it. When the youth whom they love is approaching, they will hasten, binshing, to hide it, but they will read it, and will offer thee the only gift that can be given to the betrayed—tears."

WHAT THE PRESS SAY OF IT.

"It is the most powerful of recent Italian fictions, and will have a large sale."

"The edition by Professor Monvi is faithfully and correctly translated."

"It will win unqualified commendation for its artistic excel lence as a tale."

[N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

"Signor Monvi has executed a translation which certainly has the merit of fidelity—in its English version it has the spirit an essence of the original."

"Ladies will find a mournful fascination in its pages."

[Boston Post.

"Ladies will find a mountain and a liberature. [Beston Post,
"The publication of Brataice Cenci will prove the opening of a new and unexplored field of literature, filled with frest claums and of truly captivating interest." [Boston Courier,
"The story of Brataice Cenci is the saddest that ever or curred, and more terrible than anything that was ever invented.
[Boston Traveler.

A carelessly prepared and imperiest translation of this famous novel has, we understand, been offered translation of this famous novel has, we understand, been offered issuing it, as our edition had been amnounced long ago. The translator, however, at last found a publishing-house which is hastily publishing this feeble translation in cheep paper parts, thus notoriously violating trade efiquette. The reader, therefore, who desires a faithful and vigerous translation of this great author by an assemptished Italian scholar, should be particular to buy only the edition translated by LUGIC MONT, and with the sanction of HARVARD UNIVERSITY, as it is the only genuine legitimate edition in the English language.

VALENTINIANI.

Doves once, 'tis said, bore Copid's mails,
Tied to their necks and wings and tails,
And without charge their little bills
Presenting at the window sills;
Awoke fair maids, who cut the twine
That joined the bird and Valentine,
And cut, no doubt, for joy, dear things, That joined the bird and Valentine.
And cut, no doubt, for yo, dear things, Innumerable "pigeon wings."
But that is past, no friendly cushat
A lattice ventures now to push at;
And 'stead of pecks of doves in fetters.
The post in bushels brings Love's letters.
The Valentines of fifty-eight
For birds have rather too much weight;
If all the pigeons in the West
into Love's service were impressed,
Their pinions tould not bear away
A moiety of STRONG'S display.
As sunbeams to a focus tend,
As rivers toward the ocean wend,
As needles to a magnet fly,
As fremen ran when "Fire!" 's the cry,
So from all points the love forn throngs,
Moved by one impulse, rush to STRONG'S.
Cupid did ne'r godfather stand
To Valentines so rich, so grand.
So cheap, so witty, tender, bright,
As STRONG this year has brought to light.
